THE PRESIDENT'S APPOINTMENTS.

The Chicago Evening Journal, which is one of the most carefully edited papers in the west, contained an editorial on Friday on the president's appointments, in which the following paragraph is found: "It is not altogether clear, but the most plausible construction of the tenure of office act is in the effect that if the senate shall fail to confirm the president's appointment made to fill a vacancy caused by the removal of a previous incumbent, the previous incumbent will resume his office on the senate's adjournment. The law on the subject means that it means nothing."

The Gazette is forced, after a careful reading of the statutes of the United States, to take issue with the Chicago Journal on the position it takes regarding the suspended officer when the senate refuses to confirm a president's appointment. The tenure-of-office act was pretty thoroughly discussed in both branches of congress during President Johnson's term, and also in 1869, the first year of President Grant's administration. The tenure-of-office bill was passed to curb Johnson. It provided that an officer should be restored to the office from which he was suspended when the senate refused to confirm his successor. This was the law during the latter part of Johnson's administration. But when Grant became president there was a disposition in congress to do away with the harshness of that law. The house passed a repealing bill, but the senate would not concur in all the provisions of the bill. A conference was had, and after some delay an agreement was reached, and the bill was passed, but then there was wrangling as to the true meaning of the law when it was enacted. It was held by the house that the senate gave up all power to retain an officer in office or restore him to office by refusing to confirm the one appointed to fill his place. Mr. Blaine gave the law this construction: so did General Logan; who was then in the house; and so did Senators Howe and Doolittle of this state and many other prominent republican senators.

The new law was the product of a joint conference of the two houses of congress, and as it is very brief, the Gazette publishes it in full:

Sec. 8768. During any recess of the senate, the president is authorized, in his discretion, to suspend any civil officer appointed by and with the consent of the senate, except judges of the courts of the United States, until the end of the next session of the senate, and to designate some suitable person, subject to be removed, in his discretion, by the designation of another, to perform the duties of such suspended officer in the meantime; and the person so designated shall take the oath and give the bonds required by law to be taken and given by the suspended officer, and shall, during the time he performs the duties of such officer, be entitled to the salary and emoluments of the office, no part of which shall belong to the officer suspended. The president shall, within thirty days after the commencement of each session of the senate, except for any officer which in his opinion ought not to be filled, nominate persons to fill all vacancies in office which existed at the meeting of the senate, whether temporary or not, and also in the place of all officers suspended; and if the senate during such session shall refuse to advise and consent to an appointment in the place of any suspended officer, then, and not otherwise, the president shall nominate another person as soon as practicable, to the same session of the senate for the office.

This law did seem to give room for differences of opinion as to its true meaning, but the house interpretation of the act was that a suspended officer could not return to his office in case the senate refused to confirm the appointment of a successor. Five republican members of the house who voted for this interpretation are now senators—Allison, of Iowa; Cullom and Logan, of Illinois; Hale, of Maine; and Sawyer, of Wisconsin. (With the history of this discussion and ruling fresh in the mind, it is not likely that these five senators will now vote contrary to their convictions in 1893. It is a fact worthy of note that a suspended officer had never been restored to office under a republican president, and it is not probable that one will be restored under a democratic president.

Thus do the weight of authority and the balance of common sense take issue with the Chicago Journal on the position it occupies regarding suspended officers when the senate refuses to confirm a democratic appointee. If the house interpretation of the tenure-of-office act stood as the law of the land during the administrations of Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Arthur. Why won't it stand during the administration of Cleveland?

A DEMOCRATIC WALL.

There were good many "fingers in the pie" when the president's message was being prepared, and of course that document could not be made to suit all factions of the democratic party. It is given out on pretty good authority that Secretary Bayard wrote all that part of the message relating to foreign affairs, that Postmaster General Viles prepared the sections pertaining to the postal service, and that Miss Cleveland dictated that portion which treats of the Mormon question.

But who wrote that very important part which deals with the tariff? This is a question which many democrats would like to have answered; and the Washington Post, the democratic organ at the national capital, charges that Mr. Randall wrote it, and in the moments of its wrath prints a double headed editorial in support of this charge. It then goes on to say:

Where were Secretaries Bayard and Lamar and Postmaster General Viles while this part of the message was prepared? Do they think a reduction of war taxes is only "justified" because it can be made on raw materials and without injury to manufacturers? Is it their opinion that American labor is really hurt in a protective tariff and will fall with it? These are the President's sentiments and Mr. Randall's also, and Judge Kelley and Senator Sherman's. But are they in harmony with the arguments of Messrs. Bayard and Lamar in the senate, and in keeping with the pre-visions of Mr. Viles on the tariff? Who think not? Why then are they in the president's message? Has President Cleveland so much influence with his administration that his cabinet advisers have none?

If the president has backbone enough to cut loose from Bayard, Lamar, Viles, Manning and other extreme persons on the tariff question, he should have a credit mark; but the fact is, the president did not take a different twist on the tariff from that taken by the national democratic convention. What the president says on the subject may mean anything, and that is precisely what the national platform meant. Before the president gets through he will find he has a hard crowd to deal with, for there are two things for which the democratic party lingers and thrives, they are free trade and the spoils of office.

The secretary of the treasury recommends the repeal of the act of congress forbidding the secretary from retaining greenbacks but the president did not sanction this recommendation in his message. The secretary seems a great deal more anxious to call in the outstanding greenbacks than the congress of the United States will not even give the secretary's recommendation any consideration. If this administration wants to bury itself where it will stay buried, it could not do better than to follow such a policy as is recommended by the secretary on this subject—Admission Democrat

Well done, Mr. Democrat, and thus is the sentiment of the people of this country, including the congress of the United States. But what is the administration going to do with Mr. Manning? He has already set himself up as the autocrat of the treasury department, and in his report made the daring statement that greenbacks and silver are "each a separate menace to the public tranquility and injurious to the public morals and the public faith." The greatest gold bug in the country never before had the audacity to give his opinion in such broad language, Congress will pay no attention to Mr. Manning's patent currency system, and the people will write him down as an egotistical adventurer. If the administration could set squarely down on Dan Manning it would do good service to the country.

Chauncey M. Depew, Mr. Vanderbilt's attorney, said the other day that the great millionaire was worth about $200,000,000. His father left him $100,000,000, and by skill and care he made another hundred million since his father died in 1877.

The republican senators have decided to confirm all good appointments without delay, but will not apply this rule to appointments whose predecessors were removed upon false charges. This is a good policy and should be strictly adhered to.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Pepper and Salt—The Fall of Constantine—White Heather—Zanele.

There are a great many beautiful and interesting books for the young being published this season, and one of the best of this kind is Howard Pyle's "Pepper and Salt," published by the Harper's. It is indeed a clever production, combining stories in prose and verse with profuse illustrations. All are the work of the author, and all are capital. It is seldom that poet and prose writer and illustrator are united in one person, but Mr. Pyle is that exceptional individual. The dominant characteristic of his genius is here expressed, is humor. He has set out to be funny, in order to furnish amusement for young people; and he is funny. His quips and conceits have a strong element of grotesque, but are kept safely on the side of delicacy and refinement. They are also marked by a penetrating sagacity. The author is as wise as he is witty. There is a moral capping the climax of every song and story, but a moral which makes one laugh instead of feeling dismal. Mr. Pyle has performed a kindly service for the children by putting forth his efforts solely to evoke their smiles, and the heart warms to him as he sits in the frontpiece clad in motley with cap and bells for a crown, and his tangle beside him, playing on a pipe to the intense delight of a little group around him.

For sale by James Sutherland & Sons, Janesville, and by Jansen, McClurg & Co., Chicago. Price $2.

FALL OF CONSTANTINOPLE. The Harpers have also brought out this season a very handsome edition of Pears' "Fall of Constantinople," being the story of the Fourth Crusade. The author in his preface says, "My object is to call attention to the political aspect of the conquest of Constantinople, to point out that the empire had fought continuously, and in the main successfully, for 100 years against the forces of Asia, and had spent its strength partly in this struggle and partly in educating the races which had flowed into the empire, and that it was only when it was struck in the rear that the New Rome was unable to defend itself; that the conquest of the empire was the final blow given after a long series of attacks by enemies on every side, and that the capture of Constantinople by the Crusaders was the same cause which brought about the fall of the Roman Empire in the east, and rendered its ultimate capture by the Turks both certain and easy."

WHITE HEATHER.

This is one of the very best of William Black's Northern Scotch stories, and the scene is laid in one of the most northern counties of Scotland. The story is bright and breezy, and does not lag in interest in any part of it. It is a very pretty and short love poem which any one who likes to read a splendid love story, will find as "sweet as they can be." Mr. Black's description of salmon fishing is graphic and interesting in the extreme. The review of the Gazette will find "White Heather" one of the very best stories of the season.

MATTERS REACH A CRISIS.

PUTTING A HEAD ON THE TROUBLE IN MEXICO.

Supposed to Stand on the Dignity and the Federal Troops Take Hold—Marshall Law Proclaimed and the Town of Battle Bound.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The Times has the following special from Monterey, Mexico: "Monterrey, Mex., Dec. 11.—Gen. Reyes went to the residence of Acting Governor Sepulveda at 11 o'clock last night, and informed him that the federal government had instructed him (Gen. Reyes) to declare the state of Nuevo Leon under martial law. Sepulveda asked to be notified officially. Reyes told him that his word was sufficient, and demanded that the governor surrender the state troops. This he refused to do, and told the general to go and take them if he could. Thereupon Gen. Reyes, accompanied by his staff and an escort of fifty soldiers, marched to the quarters of the state troops. The sentinels ordered a halt. Reyes made himself known. As he advanced the sentinels fired upon him, but the warning was ignored, and the state troops opened fire on Gen. Reyes' party, killing one officer and three privates and wounding another officer and five privates. Gen. Reyes, perceiving that his men were being overpowered, ordered his men to retreat. He at once ordered out the entire federal force, and at the hour of this writing (about five o'clock) Gen. Reyes has completely surrounded the governor and his forces. Federal troops, state forces, and revolutionists from all parts of the state have been ordered to this city. The capital. It is more than likely that the federal troops and the revolutionists will join their forces to-day and compel the governor to give battle. It is impossible to describe the uproar in the city.

At 11 a. m.—The city is terror-stricken. Gen. Reyes has ordered Col. Leguina, with his command of 300 men, from Tampico by special train over the Mexican National railway which should arrive at 5 o'clock to-day. The state and federal forces now in the city are about equal in number. Manuel Rodriguez, leading 500 revolutionists, is advancing on Monterey. They are reported as passing Palo Blanco, twenty miles distant, at daylight this morning. For an hour past heavy firing has been heard in the north. It is supposed that the state forces under Col. Cisneros, and the revolutionists under Col. Gollina are engaged, as it is known that both were coming to the capital from that direction. Whether the governor use Gen. Reyes can send reinforcements without dangerously weakening their position in this city. Although the state forces are surrounded, there is no doubt they can "stand" through the line at their present position. They occupy a strong position and have barricaded the city. All depends on the arrival of reinforcements.

Excepting the opening of the state legislature to-day, public interest was more deeply absorbed in the anticipated arrival of Gen. Trevino, than in any other event. Today he is lost sight of. His coming now would have little effect. His popularity has not diminished one iota. He has simply missed a grand opportunity. It is now too late. Martial law has been proclaimed by the highest authority in the land, the senate of the United States of Mexico. The state government has been superseded by a further order of the federal authorities. Gen. Reyes is appointed military governor. His success under similar circumstances in the state of Sonora and Sonora may be taken as a guarantee that he will speedily bring the despotic government to its knees.

LATER.—Acting Governor Mauro Sepulveda has surrendered the state forces, and Gen. Reyes, military governor, is now the supreme authority in the state. The revolution will be held subject to the orders of the general government. The decree proclaiming martial law will be published to-morrow. The past twenty-four hours in this city were crowned by one success after another, until the climax was reached this afternoon by the complete surrender of the state authorities. It has been reported that Gen. Gonzalez, the late president, is at the head of 6,000 men in the state of Guanajuato, and his friend, Gen. Tolentino, with 4,000 more, in Guadalajara. Gen. Gonzalez has, besides, a strong hold in several other states, and should he make this coup d'etat in Nuevo Leon, the excuse for raising the standard of rebellion, the whole republic would soon be wrapped in the flames of a general insurrection. Romero Rubio, the ambitious head of the cabinet, is placing the administration of President Diaz in a very precarious position.

The verdict of the ladies of this city is We have made a critical examination of the various displays in the city, and find that the entire party is led by J. M. Bostwick & Sons. Their display of fashions being very much the latest, and the styles and designs of their real and imitation lace, lace ties and scarfs, silk, linen, and lined lawn handkerchiefs, muffs, hoods, facemasks, &c., are superior to any we have seen, and with one exception, all unite in saying "They are entitled to first place!"

—Grand Army social reunion at Post headquarters this evening.

—Regular meeting of the common council on Monday evening.

—Dance from 8 to 12 at Riles' army Saturday night. Tickets 25 cents.

—Indications are that the 29 cent dance at Riles' army to-night will be a grand success.

—Bear in mind the 29 cent dance at Riles' army Saturday night. Smith & Corlies' band will furnish the music.

—Harry Webber's comedy company in "Nip and Tuck" at the opera-house on Monday evening—opening of a week's engagement.

—There will be a meeting of the Parson's society at the Riles' army tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 p. m. A full attendance is requested.

—Dr. and Mrs. J. W. St. John entertained a few friends very hospitably last evening. The affair was in honor of their guest, Mrs. C. W. Story, of Chicago.

—The new furnace at the Congregational church are greatly pleasing the congregation. Last Sunday, at half price they made the large auditorium uncomfortably warm.

—Don't fail to call at Fred. H. Fellows and see his fine display of diamonds, fine watches, jewelry, French and plush cloaks, novelties, etc., for Christmas presents.

—The oyster supper given by the ladies of the Congregational church last evening, was a great success. There was a large attendance and the supper which was served at an early hour was in great demand.

—The members of Oriental Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and their families held a most enjoyable reunion and social at Castle hall last evening, at which there was a good attendance. Smith & Corlies' orchestra furnished the music.

—The testimony in the case of McCallum's against the city of Janesville, was finished this morning and the jury were excused until Monday. On Monday the arguments will be made and Judge Bennett will charge the jury.

—At ten o'clock last night the thermometer registered eight degrees below zero, and seven o'clock this morning four degrees above zero, a change of twelve degrees upwards in the last part of the night, which seldom occurs in this latitude.

—About forty of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Murdoch's friends were entertained at the home of that hospitable couple last evening. Progressive each occupied most of the time but the choice refreshments served were very acceptable and added much to the pleasures of the hour.

—The remains of the late Mrs. Relief D. Kimball will arrive here from New York on the 4:45 p. m. train this evening and will be taken from the cars to the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. W. Wheeler, bluff street, first ward. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the same place.

—At the Forrester's dance next Tuesday evening no one can fail to enjoy themselves. The committee of arrangements has worked hard in perfecting every detail and a very enjoyable dance is sure to result. Everybody go and spend a pleasant evening at the Guards' armory. Tickets, one dollar.

—Charles Harding, who has been before the municipal court for the past two days charged with stealing fuel, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to a term of 5 days in the county jail. He has five little children and it is probable that the county will take care of them while their father is serving his sentence.

—The building which for so many years has been owned by J. W. Nash and occupied by him as a grocery store has changed hands. Yesterday afternoon the papers were signed and the building became the property of James Ryan. Mr. Nash will occupy the store until April 1st and at that time he intends to move his stock to some other location in the city.

—This morning at four o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Conannon received a telegram from Chicago stating that their son, John, was worse. They left on the noon o'clock train for that city and shortly after their departure another dispatch was received containing the sad news of his death. It was thought at first that he would recover but too great to his nervous system had been too great and at 6:40 this morning he expired. The remains will probably reach this city to-night.

—What use is there in rickling your money on rallies when by attending the Christmas market in the rooms formerly occupied by Usher, you are sure of getting your money's worth every time?

The market will be opened December 15th and is to be under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Guild, of Trinity Parish. In connection with this the Ladies' Sewing Society of that parish will serve a supper to the visitors. This enterprise can hardly fail to be successful.

—The cattle exhibited at the Fat Stock show in Chicago were in fine condition but some of our Rock county breeders have stock which would make a good showing beside any of the titled prize winners. Mr. Andrew Barless has a yearling Short Horn heifer, which after having found its own feed all summer, comes into the barn this fall weighing 1,050 pounds. Such an animal as that would with careful feeding make a formidable reward in a stock show.

—The Oshkosh democratic Times in one of its sensational efforts, circulates the report that the Rev. Henry Farille, pastor of the Algoma Street M. E. church, is about to accept a call from the First Congregational church, of Oshkosh. The many friends of the reverend gentleman in this city, will be interested to know that the report is premature. Mr. Farille has been a successful worker in the church of his choice. He is an able preacher and close student and would not be an acceptable pastor to the church selected for him by the Oshkosh Times.

—The tickets on the pipe which is to be raffled off by Wyler and Stillson, are selling briskly. The new cigar store is well patronized and smokers find the handsomely furnished reading room a pleasant place to spend a half hour. The factory overhead is not yet in running order, as the plastering is too damp to make the room fit for use, but stoves have been set up, and as soon as possible the many brands of fine cigars manufactured by this firm will come pouring into the market.

—The following dispatch from Green Bay to the Milwaukee Sentinel will interest Janesville people as the groom is well known in this city, he being a son of Captain and Mrs. W. D. Cargill, North bluff street, second ward:—The marriage of S. D. Cargill, of La Crosse, to Miss Lydia E. Fense, of this city, took place here today. The groom is a large robust operator with extensive interests in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Mr. and Mrs. Cargill left this afternoon for a trip to Chicago and Washington.

—The remains of the late Dr. E. W. Stevens arrived from Chicago at 1:30 this afternoon, and were met at the depot of the Chicago & Northwestern railway by a large number of sympathizing friends, including a delegation of Old Fellows. The remains were taken immediately to the town hall in Harmony where the funeral services were held at half past two o'clock this afternoon. It was Rev. Joseph Waite, of All Souls church, officiating. The remains were interred in the town of Harmony cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs S. B. Kanyon, Jerome Rowland, John O. Stanton, W. H. Grove, E. S. Taylor and L. M. Gilmore, all members of the Old Fellows.

—The funeral of the late Edward Kelley, who died suddenly of heart disease at the Janesville Machine company's work on Thursday morning, took place from St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock this morning. The attendance of friends of the family was quite large, the Janesville Machine Company stopping work in order that their employees might have an opportunity to attend. The Rev. Father McGinty conducted the solemn services, at the conclusion of which the remains were taken to the Catholic cemetery for burial. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Murray, William Oddy, Patrick Birmingham, Morris Cahal, James Kammett and Hugh O'Garr.

—The surviving members of the family desire to tender thanks to their neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness extended them during the sad hours of their bereavement.

—Last evening at the W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R., Dr. Henry Palmer arose and in behalf of Mrs. James Van Sycklen, presented the post with a brace of pistols which had been in use previous to the war of 1812, with the suggestion that they be worn by the post commander as watch charms, thus making a very appropriate badge of office—he held the weapons up to view. They were nearly two feet long and the look of dismay which spread over the commanders face as he thought of their weight was a study. It was finally agreed that they should be placed with the other post relics, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Van Sycklen for the gift. The pistols have quite a history. They were made over seventy years ago, and were presented to Mrs. Van Sycklen's grandfather, then a major general in the New York state militia. He wore them through the war of 1812, and another member of the family carried them in the Mexican war. Besides that they did good service in one or two Indian campaigns and are now almost as perfect as on the day that they were finished. Very few such elaborate products of the gunsmith's art are seen nowadays, and in them the Post has secured valuable mementoes of the early days.

HANDKERCHIEFS—Heavy broad satin handkerchiefs—cream, white or colored, 75 cents, worth $1.25. Specially artistic designs at

It is a blind confidence to suppose yourself incapable of mistake. It is in fact a very serious blunder to refuse to take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when you even suspect you have taken cold. Price 25 cents.

What a great grand county this is with its vast territory, its big rivers, its pretty women, and its Van Vidi Vici cure—Salvation Oil.

The weather.
At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 4 degrees above zero. Light snow with east wind. At 1 o'clock p. m. the register was 19 degrees above zero. Light snow with east wind.

I find Athliphores just what you claim for it. It has real merit and is a medicine which I have proved. I cheerfully recommend it to my customers for rheumatism and neuralgia. J. D. Fowler, druggist, of Lansing, Ia.

pleasant place to spend a half hour. The factory overhead is not yet in running order, as the plastering is too damp to make the room fit for use, but stoves have been set up, and as soon as possible the many brands of fine cigars manufactured by this firm will come pouring into the market.

—The following dispatch from Green Bay to the Milwaukee Sentinel will interest Janesville people as the groom is well known in this city, he being a son of Captain and Mrs. W. D. Cargill, North bluff street, second ward:—The marriage of S. D. Cargill, of La Crosse, to Miss Lydia E. Fense, of this city, took place here today. The groom is a large robust operator with extensive interests in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Mr. and Mrs. Cargill left this afternoon for a trip to Chicago and Washington.

—The remains of the late Dr. E. W. Stevens arrived from Chicago at 1:30 this afternoon, and were met at the depot of the Chicago & Northwestern railway by a large number of sympathizing friends, including a delegation of Old Fellows. The remains were taken immediately to the town hall in Harmony where the funeral services were held at half past two o'clock this afternoon. It was Rev. Joseph Waite, of All Souls church, officiating. The remains were interred in the town of Harmony cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs S. B. Kanyon, Jerome Rowland, John O. Stanton, W. H. Grove, E. S. Taylor and L. M. Gilmore, all members of the Old Fellows.

—The funeral of the late Edward Kelley, who died suddenly of heart disease at the Janesville Machine company's work on Thursday morning, took place from St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock this morning. The attendance of friends of the family was quite large, the Janesville Machine Company stopping work in order that their employees might have an opportunity to attend. The Rev. Father McGinty conducted the solemn services, at the conclusion of which the remains were taken to the Catholic cemetery for burial. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Murray, William Oddy, Patrick Birmingham, Morris Cahal, James Kammett and Hugh O'Garr.

—The surviving members of the family desire to tender thanks to their neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness extended them during the sad hours of their bereavement.

—Last evening at the W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R., Dr. Henry Palmer arose and in behalf of Mrs. James Van Sycklen, presented the post with a brace of pistols which had been in use previous to the war of 1812, with the suggestion that they be worn by the post commander as watch charms, thus making a very appropriate badge of office—he held the weapons up to view. They were nearly two feet long and the look of dismay which spread over the commanders face as he thought of their weight was a study. It was finally agreed that they should be placed with the other post relics, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Van Sycklen for the gift. The pistols have quite a history. They were made over seventy years ago, and were presented to Mrs. Van Sycklen's grandfather, then a major general in the New York state militia. He wore them through the war of 1812, and another member of the family carried them in the Mexican war. Besides that they did good service in one or two Indian campaigns and are now almost as perfect as on the day that they were finished. Very few such elaborate products of the gunsmith's art are seen nowadays, and in them the Post has secured valuable mementoes of the early days.
